Hello,

With less than 2 months before the event, we already have over 40 transmission & distribution companies who have registered at the Smart Electricity World Asia conference on 5 - 8 April 2010 in Singapore.

If you are a power grid, utility operator or government regulator, this provides a strategic platform for you to learn new development, latest tools and proven technologies, business opportunities and network with peers, investors and industry experts

If you are a service provider for the energy & utility industry, don't miss out on this excellent opportunity to meet with decision makers of transmission & distribution companies all at one venue, showcase your services and discuss business deals. Visualise the access to reach out to all the Asian C-level & management executives in 2 days.

Smart Electricity World Asia 2010 is Asia's largest and most comprehensive platform for the power utilities market - bringing together power grid owners/operators, governments, transmission and distribution companies and retailers to discuss strategies in managing current assets while enhancing the reliability of T & D network.

Encompassing a high-level strategic conference with multiple streams, a technical symposium, technology exhibition and an inaugural Smart Electricity Initiative Awards, Smart Electricity Asia 2010 is designed for both top management at a strategic level through the main conference and for technical decision makers & middle managers through the technical symposium.
